Dear Peggy:

Now that the dust has settled, and we have completed most of our Tercentenary celebrations, I very much want to express my deep appreciation to you for the extraordinary effort you have made during this most special year.

Among the critical goals we set for the Tercentenary was crafting a message to the world that told William and Mary's story in clear and persuasive terms. I believe we have achieved that goal, and you deserve a lion's share of credit for that success.

There is no adequate way for me to thank you and others for the remarkable story that we have told so successfully to so many. I simply want you to know that I am grateful and that many will benefit from the good work you have done.

Most cordially,

Timothy J. Sullivan
President
